Gokull.biz Tower - PC Tips & Tricks From the start, the makers of the BlackBerry did something different. Not only was the company the first to release a smartphone with full email and messaging support, it also stood apart from its rivals with its own in-house e-mail app. Over the years, BlackBerry Messenger (BBM) has undergone many changes in appearance, but the app's core function of allowing BlackBerry users to chat with their friends and family has always been there. Now with version 3.2 for BlackBerry 10, BBM is out with a fresh new interface that blends the app's existing, colorful feel with simpler, straight-to-the-point messaging. For the first time in the history of BlackBerry, the app features a redesigned interface and chat bubble screens that automatically appear for all users. Users can also enjoy a completely new set of features that will allow them to streamline their messaging and friending experience. When it comes to messaging, BBM boasts a vibrant, colorful interface that's both streamlined and clear. Whether chatting with friends and family, or just sending messages around a corporate or private network, BBM continues to stand out with its vibrant color and sleek design. Friends When a user is viewing friends' information, they can scroll up and down to see every message and pictures that have been sent to or from that contact. Of course, to view pictures, a user must be connected to a Wi-Fi network. Users can also create a quick list of all of their favorite contacts in the sidebar, which is only accessible while connected to a Wi-Fi network. The sidebar offers easy access to your most commonly used contacts, such as your close friends, co-workers and business associates. If you receive a lot of one-off messages, you can also sort your inbox from most recent to oldest. Streamlining Chat Truly new to version 3.2 is the ability to start and end a chat in one tap. Whether you're chatting with someone new or have a group of friends to chat with, this feature will help you quickly move from one person to the next. When a chat session is in progress, users are able to view a different status indicator that will show their location and whether they are online. To stop a chat, users simply press and hold on the chat bubble screen. The last person in the chat will see a "leave" bubble appear next to their name, and the user who sent the chat will see a " 2d92ce491b
