WASHINGTON (CBSDC/AP) — High winds and bitter cold have made the blizzard of 2015 the second in five years to hit Washington and awaken residents from a long winter's slumber. Substantially warmer temperatures throughout the region after a night that some area residents described as "like winter in May," have given way to gusts of up to 70 miles per hour with an associated wind chill of as low as 12 degrees. But the storm was not all about white skies and blowing snow. Parts of the region saw record-breaking highs, including the low of 43 degrees at Reagan relates to the field of electric motors, and more particularly to the field of the motors used in vacuum cleaners. The vacuum cleaner is the ultimate in cleaning technology. The brush, cloths, traps, rotating brushes, rotating brushes, and the blower in a vacuum cleaner are all there to to efficiently remove dust, dirt, hair, and other debris from a floor. This machine has become so commonplace in our homes that we don't even think about it. It is simply there when needed to clean the floors. As with all machines, however, a vacuum cleaner needs the occasional maintenance.

That is, to keep it in working condition.
The brushes and motor all need to be cleaned, the rotating brushes need to be cleaned and oiled, and the filters and screens need to be changed. This maintenance, however, is most often forgotten and gives rise to problems. For example, the brushes can get dried out and must be replaced. In addition, dust and dirt can get sucked into the vacuum cleaner and cause damage. When doing so, however, the vacuum cleaner must be taken apart and placed somewhere to dry out. This is a difficult task when the entire machine must be handled, and must be placed somewhere to dry. This is also a time consuming and frustrating task. A vacuum cleaner is also a source of aggravation for children.

Children are fascinated by machines, and have a tendency to play with them.

Children don't always understand why a machine is so valuable to adults. As a result, they often play with the vacuum cleaner and cause problems. For example, children often pull the cord from the vacuum cleaner and will hang it on a wall or stand for a long period of time. Eventually, they will get tired of the vacuum cleaner, and will allow the cord to dangle. One day, the vacuum cleaner will move and the cord will be exposed. This can cause a fire hazard if the vacuum is plugged in, or if the cord is exposed and tied to an object. In addition, the loop and attached cord can be a tripping hazard for children. In addition, children are fascinated by small motors. As
