You Might also like In this Issue January 2012 A letter to my son January 27, 2012 Dear Joey, I am writing this letter to you as your mother but also as your friend. I know you don't really have friends your age, and you don't really listen to advice from "grown-ups" these days, and you probably are too smart to be taught how to play sports or socialize or have fun, like your friends your age do. So I hope you will forgive me if I tell you that your life is at stake, and that you are headed for trouble. You are way too smart, and I know you think I'm being far too dramatic when I tell you that, but it's true, and you need to hear this. It's also important for you to hear this from your mother - I am the ONLY person in your life that you can rely on to tell you the truth, Joey, and to warn you when you are headed for the "wrong" path. When you were a baby, I was so happy to have you, because it meant that you were the first boy born in our family, and I finally had a daughter to be my best friend and do all the things she always did for me, but I had to make her be a "good" girl, she was too much like her Daddy. I was afraid she would turn out to be just like him. This is one of the reasons why I felt so disappointed when you were born. You are just like him in so many ways, Joey, but you are very different from him as well. So, I guess I love you in spite of your personality, Joey, but I also love you because of it, and because of the kind and gentle ways you try to show me, when 3ef4e8ef8d
