.08.2012 Juliusz Gerstner "The Management of Innovation and Learning"

(2001)..... 20 "Collaboration and learning" in science education The Strategic Importance of Collaboration and Learning, From the 5th International Conference on The Management of Innovation and Learning (IMOILS) Xenia Grigou (Chair of the Programme Committee) Juliusz Gerstner (Head of Institute of Management, Haifa University of Israel) Francesca Stanchi (Department of Education and Psychology, University of Padova,

Italy)..... 21 "Collaboration and Learning" As part of a roundtable session which was part of a three-day symposium on science education, "Collaboration and Learning in Science Education: empirical and theoretical issues", organized by the 3rd European Conference on the Teaching of Science (ECTS-3) in Lisbon, on 15-16 June 2004, in Lisbon, Portugal, I participated in the following panel discussion. The panel was chaired by Dr. Alexander Arlitt, ESQ, Editor-in-chief of the journal Quality Education Quarterly and, later on, Professor Emeritus at the University of British Columbia in Vancouver, Canada. Alexander Arlitt. It's not really important whether you run a seminar on collaboration or learn from one, you need to be more interested in what others have to offer than in what you've got to offer. We (being the members of the academic community) can offer each other a lot. Fr. Stefano Fassi. We can offer the "market of ideas". Alexander Arlitt. Yes, one can offer to do experiments, one can offer to invite others to collaborate on one's projects. Fr. Stefano Fassi. My interests are research, writing, teaching. I also wrote a lot of articles, so I can offer that. Alexander Arlitt. Yes, we can offer these things. However, we can not offer to give the answers we found to our questions. Fr. Stefano Fassi. Yes. There are many things we can offer others, but there are also many things they can offer us. We don't have all the answers, no-one has them, and that's not our fault. Alexander Arlitt. I think it's important to understand the limits of collaboration. Fr. Stefano Fassi. I agree. But I would like to
